

Hallo, my name is Johanna. I am part of the Erasmus team from the KSLö.

The last months were not easy for none of us. Since our school closed, we had to study from home. Many of our teachers did videoconferences per zoom with us. There were some technical problems but besides that, it worked really well.

I believe that this challenge has taught us a lot. Time management, independent learning and discipline are all things we can take away from this time. We have had a lot of time to think about our lives. This crisis gives us the chance for change. We can focus on what is important to us. Spending time with our families, working together as one nations and one world and appreciating the little things are thinks that have become more important than ever.

Besides the positive effects, I hope that this will not happen again soon. I missed going to school a lot because I like going to school much more than studying from home.
